MiCoR is an information management system that brings together the importing country requirements of Australia’s agricultural export trading partners on to one single platform.

MiCoR is a web-based database with standard web navigation to search for content on importing country requirements for eggs, honey and other processed foods. MiCoR does not require any specific training as it is a standard web navigation tool.

To use MiCoR, and view data in MiCoR, you do not need any specific software on your computer. You do need a connection to the internet using any standard browser e.g. Explorer, Firefox, Safari etc. MiCoR can also be accessed using mobile devices with internet connection.

You can search importing country requirements, access advanced search functionality and save and/or print content relevant to your operational needs. Some of the content in MiCoR is restricted and, as a result, a logon and password will be required to view specific restricted content. However all applications for access to restricted content on MiCoR will be first assessed by this department.

From 12 December 2011 the MiCoR system will be available for use via the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry website www.daff.gov.au

To ‘apply for access’, users need to go to www.daff.gov.au/micor/eggs/apply_for_access
